

CHRISTINA FARINACCI-ROBERTS
Head Heart Hands Consulting LLC

Christina Roberts is a Capital Region native who is a 20 year veteran educator and champion for children. After a successful career as a high school English teacher and school turnaround principal (twice over), she began an educational consulting company in 2017 founded on the belief that all human flourishing is optimized when we activate, cultivate and align our "head, heart and hands." She and her business partner seek to support other school leaders to reimagine the form and function of education in order to achieve equity and excellence for all.

Christina is extremely passionate about equipping and empowering the next generation to live lives worthy of their potential and to use their unique gifts and talents to meet the needs of their local and global communities. She lives in Latham with her husband and two children and is active in her faith community as she aspires to exemplify its principles of love, grace and service.
