

JON CRAIN

Whiteman Osterman & Hanna LLP

Jon is a litigator in the Firm's Litigation, Arbitration and Mediation Practice Group. Jon has successfully litigated and arbitrated a broad range of commercial matters, including corporate shareholder disputes, disputes regarding trade secrets and proprietary business information, disputes concerning commercial real estate and construction, business-to-business collection and breach of contract claims, and complex personal injury and products liability actions. Jon also has successfully litigated numerous administrative proceedings on behalf of both corporate and individual clients, including land use, zoning and commercial development litigation.

Jon joined Whiteman Osterman & Hanna LLP in September 2013. Prior to joining the firm, he served as an Appellate Court Attorney for the New York State Supreme Court Appellate Division, Third Department. Jon received his Juris Doctor, magna cum laude, from Pace University School of Law in 2012, where he served as the Editor-in-Chief of the Pace Law Review. Jon also has a degree in International Relations from Virginia Tech.