

DONG-HA CHUNG

C&S Companies

D.H. Chung is an architect in the Albany office for C&S Companies, a full-service engineering and architecture firm headquartered in Syracuse. He studied art during college and went on to complete his Master of Architecture degree from the University of Michigan. He enjoyed living and working in New York City for nine years after finishing his studies. An opportunity to work for the State University of New York brought him to the Capital Region approximately ten years ago.

Professionally, he has served as the project architect and project manager for a multitude of complex and technically challenging projects. In his current role, he is primarily focused on design and construction of buildings for a number of governmental agencies throughout the Hudson Valley region. He is also helping to establish the architecture practice out of the Albany office.

He currently resides in Delmar with his wife, two daughters, and an adopted pit bull mix named Jenny. In his spare time, DH enjoys playing tennis and basketball, traveling, is a passionate college football fan, and is a backyard BBQ and karaoke enthusiast.
