

EMILY KEABLE

Gleason, Dunn, Walsh & O'Shea

Emily Keable joined Gleason, Dunn, Walsh & O'Shea as an associate attorney in 2018. Her practice primarily focuses on adoption law where she has represented biological parents, adoptive parents, foster parents, and adoption agencies throughout the adoption process. However, she has also been involved in a variety of other practice areas, such as estate administration and litigation, residential real estate transactions, and other general litigation matters. She is a member of the Albany County Bar Association and NYS Bar Association.

Prior to joining Gleason, Dunn, Walsh & O'Shea, Emily graduated from Syracuse University College of Law where she was an Executive Editor on the Syracuse Law Review. She obtained a bachelor's degree from St. Lawrence University.
