

SAMUEL PIERRE

Ellis Medicine

Sam has been part of Ellis Medicine since 2008 where he started working in the Dining & Nutrition Department and the Emergency Department while pursuing his undergrad degree. That's when he became interested in health care operations and now he is the Director of Talent & HR Operations.

Sam and his HR team fulfill multiple duties, including managing the hospital's labor-relations program, ensuring that all employees are treated fairly while holding people accountable, working with a core council that oversees diversity and inclusion efforts, and working with recruiters to acquire and retain talent.

Most recently, Sam was a recipient of 2020 Albany Business Review 40 under 40 award. Outside of work, Sam enjoys spending time with his family, volunteering in the community whenever possible and enjoys reading and learning and experiencing new things.
