

KANIA PONTO

MVP Health Care

Kania Ponto is a member of the Enterprise Marketing & Communications team at MVP Health Care, where she is responsible for corporate and internal communications, focused on enterprise-wide initiatives and executive leadership communications.

Throughout her career, Kania has applied her background in communications and social work to help create healthier and more just communities. Prior to joining MVP, she served as Communications Director at the National Association of Social Workers in Albany, and as Relay for Life Community Manager at the American Cancer Society. A Capital Region transplant, she previously lived in Western New York where she was involved in various nonprofit organizations, including working with the refugee and immigrant communities.

Outside of work, Kania loves spending time with her husband and their Boston Terriers and exploring all the Capital Region has to offer and capturing it on film.
